WINDOM'S PLAN.

A Project that Will Please Silver Men.

The Director of the Mint Enthusiastic Over the Scheme.

Speaker Reed Will Announce Some Committees This Week.

The Proposed Celebration of the Four Hundredth Anniversary of the Discovery of America, Etc.

By Telegraph to the Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—[By the Associated Press.] Director of the Mint Leech, in an interview today on the subject of Secretary Windom's proposed silver measure, said that it commends itself to his judgment as the best plan for the present utilization of silver, and contains in itself the solution of the silver problem.

"It will afford, I believe," said Leech, "a ready market for the surplus silver product of the world, the normal effect of which will be to gradually and permanently enhance the value of silver until it reaches a point so nearly corresponding with its value in coinage that we can with safety do away with all temporary measures and restore the law as it existed from the foundation of the Government to 1873. It is a curious fact that the papers representing the extreme gold sentiment of the East and the extreme silver men of the West should both oppose the plan, and for diametrically different reasons; the former because it proposes to utilize silver more fully as money, and the latter because they say it degrades silver to the level of a commodity. With regard to the latter objection, I fail to see how it is any more degrading to silver to receive it in unlimited quantities and issue notes upon it, redeemable at the option of the holder in full legal tender dollars, than the present law to buy silver as a commodity.

"The proposition to issue certificates on silver bullion is not new, but has been advocated in Congress in various forms by the most advanced silver men. In the same manner it has been repeatedly proposed in Congress to issue certificates on gold bullion, and in my judgment this proposition should become a law. I believe it would have been recommended by the present Secretary of the Treasury but for the fact that he did not wish to entangle the present measure with any other proposition. Gold bars are used more extensively in the settlement of international balances than coin. Why is it not just as degrading to make payments in gold bars instead of gold coin as it would be to receive silver bars and issue representatives of coin upon them? The plan proposed by the Secretary is far more advantageous to the silver producers than the enforcement of the extreme limit of the present law, because under its operation more than $4,000,000 worth per month could be received. Any restriction acts as a menace to the [illegible] by supplying an unlimited market for the product of silver it leaves it open to all natural operations of the law of supply and demand. The tendency of this will be to gradually and permanently enhance the value, thus enabling producers to realize a large price for their products. At the same time it will naturally enhance the intrinsic value of the large stock of silver in circulation in this country, either as coin or its representative. I believe the adoption of the measure recommended by the Secretary would in a few years so enhance the value of silver that an international agreement looking to the opening of the mints of the world, or at least of the States of the Latin Union and countries of the continent, to the free coinage of both metals at a fixed ratio, would not only be possible but desirable and readily accomplished. So far as concerns the criticism that the plan would make a large addition to our paper currency based on silver, and thereby imperil the continuance of the gold standard, it must be evident to every one that the predominant sentiment of the country is in favor of the use of silver as money, and the only thing to be considered is what is the best way to safely use it."

CONGRESSIONAL FORECAST.

Programme for the Week in Senate and House.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—[By the Associated Press.] If the committee investigating the Silcott defalcation completes its work in season to make a report to the House tomorrow, it will undoubtedly give rise to much discussion, but the committee does not expect to be able to finish its labors until some later day. It is thought a joint resolution will be introduced and pressed to prompt passage to provide for the payment of the lost salaries, though there are intimations that this will meet with determined opposition.

In former years it was the custom to permit Representatives to introduce bills before committees were appointed, but this led to such confusion in the docketing of measures that in the Fiftieth Congress the practice was discontinued, and it is hardly probable that it will be reëstablished. There is reason to believe that instead of waiting as usual to complete the entire list of committees Speaker Reed will announce several of the more important committees this week. Until these are announced, however, short sessions and long recesses may be expected.

Wednesday at the Capitol will be devoted to a programme of exercises commemorative of the centennial celebration of the inauguration of George Washington. The Senate and House will assemble together in the hall of the House, and there will be music, prayer by the Chaplain of the Senate, an address by Chief Justice Fuller and a benediction by the Chaplain of the House. These exercises are to be attended by the President and Cabinet, the Supreme Court, delegates to the Pan-American and International Maritime conferences and other officials.

It is not expected that any business of importance will be completed in the Senate this week. Bills will be introduced and referred and some of the committees will begin their regular work.

Tomorrow the Republican caucus Committee on Committees will meet, and it expects to conclude the work of rearrangement at that session, so as to report to the caucus on Tuesday.

Action will probably be taken upon the nominations sent in by the President last week. These number 135, all recess appointments except that of Judge Brewer.

THE GREAT ANNIVERSARY.

Plan for Celebrating the Discovery of America.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—[By the Associated Press.] The National Board of Promotion, in charge of the three Americas' exposition movement, has agreed upon a bill which will, tomorrow, be introduced in both Senate and House.

MRS. ROBINSON.

A LADY IN SIMPSON TABERNACLE PULPIT.

She Opens a Campaign Against the Forces of Sin with a Strong Sermon on Freedom—A True Christian the Only True Freeman.

The first of a series of revival meetings conducted by Mrs. L. O. Robinson began yesterday morning at Simpson M. E. Tabernacle, near the corner of Seventh and Hope streets. At 11 o'clock quite a large congregation had assembled in the auditorium, and after the usual preliminary services, Mrs. Robinson read a passage from the scriptures. She is a diminutive body, with small, intellectual features. When speaking her voice has a sympathetic ring, and she speedily obtained a definite influence over the emotions of the congregation.

Her discourse was based upon the first verse of the fifth chapter of Galatians: "Stand fast therefore in the liberty wherewith Christ hath made us free, and be not entangled again with the yoke of bondage." It was a powerful and pathetic plea for Christianity. The imagery of the speaker was clear and at times beautiful, and the eyes of many were dimmed at some striking and pathetic figure which appealed to their own experiences.

"The central thought in this beautiful passage," she began, "is in that word liberty—liberty; a word so dear to the human heart. Even the wild rose runs its creepers at its own sweet will through the fragrant forest, and the wild bird soars upon its own course. Wrecked would be the human heart that would sell its liberty. Precious is the thought that we have our birthright in a flag so free. A flag respected up and down the world, and none so hardy that they dare to cast a missile at the ensign of the free.

"But precious as the freedom of our Nation, it is better to be personally free. Only a few years ago was witnessed the strange anomaly of a free nation holding in bondage 4,000,000 slaves. Now, thank God, no slave clanks his chains upon our soil.

"If it is precious to be thus free, how much more glorious it is to be spiritually free—free men and women in Jesus—free through the blood of the Lamb.

"Perhaps we can best estimate our freedom by going down into the prison-house of our souls and see wherein we are kept in bondage. I do only glance this morning at one or two forms of bondage which enchain us—sins pressed in like shackles upon our souls.

"The bondage of temper! How we writhed under it! And when culture and education came in, still the storm raged in the soul. If there were fewer words of temper, they were more rapier-like, and cut keener and deeper. When the olive branch began to grow about our table, down on our knees and face we wept out our shame. Then we came out clothed and in our right mind, thinking our old enemy defeated and dead. Thanks to Jesus Christ that standing under the drippings of Calvary we can shout, 'These things no longer move me.'

"Look at the bondage of pride. Ah! it grows in the richest soil of the heart, and yet perhaps takes the most in the poor man's soul.

[illegible] our neighbors [illegible] increasing [illegible] who have wanted [illegible] they are not. Yet, for instance, pride does her foulest work in the church of God. Into the class-rooms; into the prayer-meetings it comes.

"You will not utter your heart because, forsooth, some one has five talents and you have but one little one. I know this bondage. I used to wonder why in the parable it was the man with one talent who hid it away; but as I went out into the world I found that the people with five talents did not hide them. This morning let us be honest with ourselves. God help us to bring our hearts out of the alcoves of velvet into the white light of truth. A friend of mine bought a beautiful picture, but when he came to hang it in a bright light, he found that it looked like a daub, and he had to build an alcove, which he lined with velvet, and let in a ray of shaded light; then the work of the master appeared in all its beauty. I am afraid our religion is too much of that order. Suppose you and I knew that a prayer we had offered would comfort some poor heart, would we not want to pray? Because it seems to us that our speech is blundering and stammering we lay our one talent aside. The trouble with so many of us is that we think we little gimlets can do nothing unless we are great crunching augers; but the auger would be out of place in the lath, just as the gimlet would be in the beam; yet each has its place.

"One more clanking of the chains of bondage is upon every threshold in the land—the bondage of appetite. I don't care what appetite it is, if it makes the man the slave and the appetite the master. It may be the appetite for morphine—an appetite that is creeping into countless thousands of the homes of the mothers of our country. It may be intemperance—any appetite.

"We talk about the bondage of African slavery, and its hopelessness, but it does not begin to compare with the slavery of appetite. It strikes black and white alike. African slavery put its fetters on the poor and ignorant, but the slavery of appetite runs riot through our palaces and kills our noblest and best.

"African slavery never brought a man so low that he did not want to be free. It might hunt a man from his cradle to his grave, but when the beautiful angel we call Death stood over him, his soul could soar away into eternity with God; but the slavery of appetite so racks the soul of man that he lies content in his bondage, and sends him despairing through the ages.

"Blessed be God for the life in Jesus Christ that frees the poor chained souls from all forms of bondage.

"But liberty hath always cost a price. Looking through the telescope of a hundred years, we can only faintly estimate the price paid for our national liberty. Upon the fields of many a hard fight it speaks louder than words. We billowed our hillsides with our graves. Even today the tap, tap, tap, of crutches upon our streets, and the sleeveless arms, tell of the sacrifices made.

"But how much greater the price paid by God. Think you if the redemption of a people cost such a price, that the soul shall go free without money and without price? I tell you nay. It bankrupted heaven of its glory to give us liberty. Jesus left the glory he had with the Father, and drank every drop of bitterness, poverty and suffering that we through it might be free. He carried that heavy cross that He might lift every burden; He suffered on the cross that He might set us free. Then He went to the [illegible] grave, so that when we came to the charnel-house we might find only the shadow of His sweet presence. Then He burst the bonds of death itself. O, wonderful price!

"But how much liberty am I entitled to through the death and merits of the Lord Jesus Christ? How much through my own good works? None at all. The purest deeds cannot form my soul anew. When I have done my utmost I have simply done my duty. But how much liberty am I entitled to? Some children were discussing the division of their father's estate. One of them said: 'I do not want your share, or any part of what belongs to either of you, my brothers; but I want every cent father left me in his will, and I propose to have it.' And I said to myself, the children of this day and generation are wiser than of old. I heard some farmers discussing the title to some Government land in the West. One of them said: 'I don't want a foot or an inch of any of my neighbors' land; but I took up a Government claim and have improved it, and I want all that the law allows me, and I will have it.' And I said to myself, the children of this day and generation are wiser than of old.

"Let me see if we have claimed all the salvation Jesus Christ died to purchase for us. We cannot afford to go on short rations. In the first place, Jesus died to pay the debt I owe. The law said the soul that shall sin shall die. But Jesus died to pay my debt of sin. So that when I come to the little, narrow stream men call death, I shall not find another death on the other side; but salvation. It is a salvation that begins here and now; not only one that frees us from the penalty of sin, but from sinning.

"I think I hear some one say, you ought to skip that, because you know every one sins, and no one is free from it. Here we live in an every-day world, says my brother; we have natures all earthward in our tendencies. Grant all you choose about these crooked heads and hearts and the weakness of human nature. Do you believe God is strong enough to take our burdens and bear them? Can we keep from sinning? No, a thousand times no. But can God keep us from it? Yes. The trouble is in letting him do it.

"A little boy, starting out with his father upon a sleety morning when all was a glare of ice, took hold of one finger of his father's hand, although the father wanted to take his hand. He slipped, and could not hold on by one finger. His father helped him up, and he tried it again and fell. Then he held up his hand to his father, and that strong hand led him in safety. God help us to reach up the right hand of our will to Him, and though we make many blunders and mistakes may we not fall into actual, willing sin. Then it will free us from care. In the rush and roar of life it is said men are dying from too much work. The editor falls in his sanctum; the minister in his pulpit; the busy mother over her basket of work. But is it true that it is work that is killing them? No, it is worry. But when the Lord stands by you, do what your hand finds to do and He will comfort you. If the Lord won't carry the burdens of the busiest man in the world then religion is a failure. It is those who are weighed down to the water's edge with burdens to whom He proffers His helping hand.

"One of the busiest men I ever knew is Prof. Griffin. He spent years in educational work until his system broke down. He went about rest in a sanitarium. While within [illegible] and without the palace you could not think of a single luxury that could be added, or of a single splendor that could be kindled, down on the banks of the sea the drydocks of Ezion-geber rang with the hammers of the shipwrights who were constructing larger vessels for a still wider commerce; for all lands and climes were to be robbed to make up Solomon's glory. No rest till his keels shall cut every sea, his axmen hew every forest, his archers strike every rare wing, his fishermen whip every stream, his merchants trade in every bazar, his name be honored by every tribe; and royalty shall have no dominion, wealth no luxury, gold no glitter, song no melody, light no radiance, waters no gleam, birds no plumage, prancing coursers no mettle, architecture no grandeur, but it was all his. Across the thick grass of the lawn, fragrant with tufts of camphire from Engedi, fell the long shadows of trees brought from distant forests. Fish pools, fed by artificial channels that brought the stream from hills far away, were perpetually ruffled with fins, and golden scales shot from watercave to watercave with endless dive and swirl, attracting the gaze of foreign potentates. Birds that had been brought from foreign aviary glanced and fluttered among the foliage, and called to their mates far beyond the sea. From the royal stables there came up the neighing of 12,000 horses, standing in blankets of Tyrian purple, chewing their bits over troughs of gold, waiting for the King's order to be brought out in front of the palace, when [illegible] Royalty had no broken colt that had never been mounted, and after his friends had strewn their garments on the beast for a saddle, the Savior mounts it, and the populace, excited, and shouting, and feverish, push on back toward this city of Jerusalem. Let none jeer now nor scoff at this rider, or the populace will trample him under foot in an instant. There is one long shout of two miles, and as far as the eye can reach you see wavings of demonstrations and approval. There was something in the rider's visage, something in his majestic brow, something in his princely behavior, that stirs up the enthusiasm of the people. They run up against the beast and try to pull the rider off into their arms, and carry on their shoulders the illustrious stranger. The populace are so excited that they hardly know what to do with themselves, and some rush up to the roadside trees and wrench off branches and throw them in his way; and others doff their garments, what though they be new and costly and spread them for a carpet for the conqueror to ride over. "Hosanna!" cry the people at the foot of the hill. "Hosanna!" cry the people all up and down the mountain. The procession has now come to the brow of yonder Olivet. Magnificent prospect reaching out in every direction—vineyards, olive groves, jutting rock, silvery Siloam, and above all, rising on its throne of hills, this most highly honored city of all the earth, Jerusalem. Christ there, in the midst of the procession, looks off and sees here fortressed gates, and yonder the circling wall, and here the towers blazing in the sun, Phasaelus and Mariamne. Yonder is Hippicus, the King's castle. Looking along in the range of the larger branch of that olive tree, you see the mansions of the merchant princes. Through this cleft in the limestone rock you see the palace of the richest trafficker in all the earth. He has made his money by selling Tyrian purple. Behold now the temple! Clouds of smoke lifting from the shimmering roof, while the building rises up beautiful, grand, majestic, the architectural skill and glory of the earth, lifting themselves there in one triumphant doxology, the frozen prayer of all nations.

PERSONALITY OF CHRIST.

The crowd looked around to see exhilaration and transport in the face of Chist. Oh, no! Out from amid the gates, and the domes, and the palaces, there arose a vision of this city's sin, and of this city's doom, which obliterated the landscape from horizon to horizon, and he burst into tears, crying: "O Jerusalem, Jerusalem!" But that was the only day of pomp that Jesus saw in and around this city. Yet he walked the streets of this city the loveliest and most majestic being the world ever saw or ever will see. Publius Lentilus, in a letter to the Roman Senate, describes him as "a man of stature somewhat tall; his hair the color of a chestnut fully ripe, plain to the ears, whence downward it is more orient, curling and waving about the shoulders; in the midst of his forehead is a stream, or partition of his hair; forehead plain, and very delicate; his face without spot or wrinkle, a lovely red; his nose and mouth so formed as nothing can be represented; his beard thick, in color like his hair—not very long; his eyes gray, quick and clear." He must die. The French army in Italy found a brass plate on which was a copy of his death-warrant, signed by John Zerubbabel, Raphael Robani, Daniel Robani and Capet.

Sometimes men on the way to the scaffold have been rescued by the mob. No such attempt was made in this case; for the mob were against Him. From 9 in the morning till 3 in the afternoon, Jesus hung a-dying in the outskirts of this city. It was a scene of blood. We are so constituted that nothing is so exciting as blood. It is not the child's cry in the street that so arouses you as the crimson dripping from its lip. In the dark hall, seeing the finger marks of blood on the plastering, you cry: "What terrible deed has been done here?" Looking upon this suspended victim of the cross, we thrill with the sight of blood—blood dripping from thorn and nail, blood rushing upon His cheek, blood saturating His garments, blood gathered in a pool beneath. It is called an honor to have in one's veins the blood of the house of Stuart, or of the house of Hapsburg. Is it nothing when I point you to the outpouring blood of the King of the universe?

In England the name of Henry was so great that its honors were divided among different reigns. It was Henry the First, and Henry the Second, and Henry the Third, and Henry the Fourth, and Henry the Fifth. In France the name of Louis was so favorably regarded that it was Louis the First, Louis the Second, Louis the Third, and so on. But the King who walked these streets was Christ the First, Christ the Last, and Christ the Only. He reigned before the Czar mounted the throne of Russia, or the throne of Austria was lifted, "King Eternal, Immortal." Through the indulgences of the royal family the physical life degenerates, and some of the kings have been almost imbecile, and their bodies weak, and their blood thin and watery; but the crimson life that flowed upon Calvary had in it the health of the immortal God.

THE DEATH AND RESURRECTION.

Tell it now to all the earth and to all the heavens—Jesus, our King, is sick with His last sickness. Let couriers carry the swift dispatch. His pains are worse; he is breathing a last groan; through his body quivers the last anguish; the King is dying; the King is dead! It is royal blood. It is said that some religionists make too much of the humanity of Christ. I respond that we make too little. If some Roman surgeon standing under the cross had caught one drop of the blood on his hand and analyzed it, it would have been found to have the same plasma, the same disk, the same fibrin, the same albumen. It was unmistakably human blood. It is a man that hangs there. His bones are of the same material as ours. His nerves are sensitive like ours. If it were an angel being despoiled I would not feel it so much, for it belongs to a different order of beings. But my Savior is a man, and my whole sympathy is aroused. I can imagine how the spikes felt—how hot the temples burned—what deathly sickness seized his heart—how mountain and city and mob swam away from his dying vision—something of the meaning of that cry for help that makes the blood of all the ages curdle with horror, "My God! my God! why hast thou forsaken me?"

Forever with all these scenes of a Savior's suffering will this city be associated. Here His unjust trial and here His death. O Jerusalem, Jerusalem!

But finally, I am thrilled with the fact that this city is a symbol of heaven, which is only another Jerusalem. "The New Jerusalem!" And this thought has kindled the imagination of all the sacred poets. I am glad that Horatio Bonar, the Scotch hymnist, rummaged among old manuscripts of the British museum until he found that hymn in ancient spelling, parts of which we have in mutilated form in our modern hymn books, but the quaint power of which we do not get in our modern versions:

Hierusalem, my happy home!
When shall I come to thee?
When shall my sorrows have an end,
Thy joys when shall I see?

Noe dampish mist is seene in thee,
Noe colde nor darksome night;
There everie soule shines as the sun,
There God himselfe gives light.

The walls are made of pretious stones,
Thy bulwarkes diamondes square;
Thy gates are of right orient pearle,
Exceedinge riche and rare.

Thy turrettes and thy pinnacles
With carbuncles doe shine;
Thy verrie streets are paved with gould,
Surpassinge cleare and fine.

Thy houses are of yvorie,
Thy windows crystal cleare,
Thy tyles are made of beaten gould,
O God! that I were there.

Our sweete is mixt with bitter gaule,
Our pleasure is but paine;
Our joyes scarce last the lookeing on,
Our sorrowes stille remaine.

But there they live in such delight,
Such pleasure and such play,
As that to them a thousand yeares
Doth seeme to them as yesterday.

Thy gardens and thy gallant walkes
Continually are greene;
There grow such sweete and pleasant flowers
As nowhere else are seene.

The trees forevermore beare fruite,
And evermore doe sprinze;
There evermore the angels sit,
And evermore doe singe.

Hierusalem! my happie home!
Would God I were in thee!
Would God my woes were at an end,
Thy joyes that I might see!

CHEAP GROCERIES

Why does F. J. SMITH, Central and Vernon avenues, sell goods cheaper than any other house in town? Because he owns his building and has no rent to pay; has no loss on bad bills, and his daily expenses do not exceed $5, while other stores have to add 5 per cent. for loss on bad bills, and their daily expenses are $7.50 to $8 per day. This, you see, enables him to sell cheaper than his competitors possibly can without a loss.

Worth Investigation.

We are making suits to order of the fine Huddersfield Worsteds for $25 which are worth $40. As the sale of these fine worsteds during the past three weeks has proved such an immense success in San Francisco, we concluded to give the benefit to the public of Los Angeles. We have purchased $40,000 worth of these Huddersfield worsteds and have added a large line of Kerseys and Meltons for overcoats, made to order, with fine silk linings, for $25 to $30, which would cost elsewhere at least from $40 to $60. We have received from the mill over 40 pieces of fine Trouserings, which we bought at an immense reduction, and we are now prepared to give our customers and the public the benefit. These are fine ALL WOOL goods at prices never before known in Los Angeles. Please call and examine the goods and be convinced of the bargains now offered for the holidays.

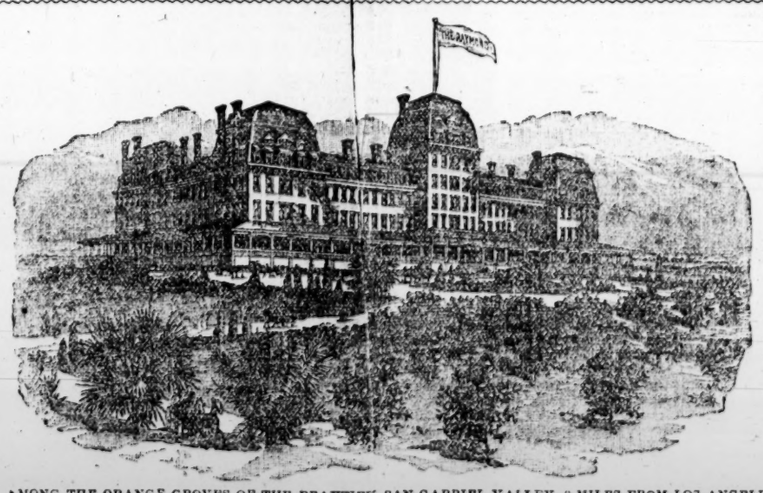
The Raymond Hotel.

The Raymond, East Pasadena.



AMONG THE ORANGE GROVES OF THE BEAUTIFUL SAN GABRIEL VALLEY, 8 MILES FROM LOS ANGELES.

C. H. MERRILL, Manager (during the summer season manager of the Crawford House, White Mountains, N. H.).

If you cannot go out to the Raymond and spend a day, a week or a month, or the whole season, then go out and stay a few hours. It is well worth your while to see the magnificent view from its piazzas; and that view alone will well repay you, although there are many other interesting features—especially the grand display of flowers in the hotel grounds, which are now under the charge of Mr. C. H. Hovey, the celebrated landscape gardener, formerly of Hovey's Nurseries, Cambridge, Mass. Tourists visiting Los Angeles should make a trip to the Raymond, even if the stay there must necessarily be brief. There are frequent trains between Los Angeles and The Raymond by several lines of railroad. The orchestra consists of four soloists, who render the choicest of music twice each day. A very complete livery is connected with the hotel, and it is an excellent starting-point for a drive through the San Gabriel Valley, in which are situated the San Gabriel Mission Church, Rose's winery, Lucky Baldwin's stock farm, the Sierra Madre Villa, and many other places of interest.

Full particulars regarding board and other matters can be obtined by addressing C. H. MERRILL, Manager of The Raymond, East Pasadena, California.

The Times-Mirror Company will issue the usual Annual Trade Number of the LOS ANGELES TIMES on or about the 1st day of January, 1890, to be sold separately from the regular news issue of THE TIMES for that day.

It will consist of 48 half-size pages, inclosed in a handsome four-page cover, with elegant illustrated title-page and three maps—the whole bound in the style of Harper's Weekly.

The contents will be equal in volume to a good-sized 200-page book.

The Annual will contain, among other things, the following leading features:

(1.) A Review of the Year, showing the progress and present business condition of Los Angeles city and county, and of the other counties composing Southern California.

PHYSICAL TRAINING.

The American system of education is justly lauded as one of the most perfect in the world. There is, however, one particular in which it is lamentably lacking. That is physical training. In this department of education we are still very far behind many European countries, such, for instance, as Germany, where the development of the body is made to keep pace with that of the mind in a manner which produces most remarkable results, and has given the Fatherland a race of stalwart, able-bodied men, equally reliable in the council chamber or on the battlefield.

What we need to aim at is the mens sana in corpore sano—that even balance between mind and body, which are so intimately and delicately inter-dependent. The hollow-chested, pale-eyed student is of little use in the world, either to himself, to his country or to posterity. It is not such men that have done this Nation good service, but men whose mental fires burned in a sound vessel.

There was recently held in Boston a meeting of representatives of prominent educational institutions, to hear and discuss the expositions of diverse methods of adapting physical training to the need of our schools. The president of the conference, chosen for its two days' session, was Dr. William T. Harris, United States Commissioner of Education. The Swedish or Ling system was the opening theme, and was presented by verbal exposition and practical illustration. The Earl of Meath, an English gentleman, who has given much attention to the subject in Great Britain, spoke very highly of this system. Jay W. Seaver, of Yale, said that neither the Ling, the German or any other system was exclusively suitable for use in our schools. He believed that Americans were capable of taking what was apparently the best and evolving one to suit themselves.

Dr. Edward Hitchcock, of Amherst, who was introduced as a pioneer of physical training, made the following, among other observations:

Physical education, as the term is understood in Amherst College, is such a cultivation of the powers and capabilities of the student as will enable him to maintain his bodily conditions in the best working order, while providing at the same time for the greatest efficiency of his intellectual and spiritual life. To promote this end official direction should so control the student that he cannot seriously neglect his physical, with which are so closely interdependent his intellectual and moral interests. He must not be permitted to cultivate any other part of his nature at the expense of the physical, nor, on the other hand, any part of the physical at the expense of any other part.

Every student immediately on entering college is subjected to a thorough and searching anthropometric examination, and furnished with a systematic statement of his physical condition. To each are then given, by public lecture and private interview, certain theoretical and practical principles by which he may care intelligently for his own health. As early as possible in the course he receives instruction in human anatomy and physiology, illustrated by actual preparations of the human body and by papier maché models.

Every student of average health of body and condition of limbs is required to take, under the eye of a professor, teacher or director, as often as four days in each week, a course of muscular exercise, of such nature as to engage a class of young men working together. The exertion demanded by this exercise is not violent, but only such as is rhythmic, steady and adapted to secure free movements of the body and limbs. The results sought therein are elasticity, vigor and suppleness rather than great or prolonged muscular power.

The sooner our educational institutions begin to attach proper weight to physical training, the better will it be for our rising generation and for the Nation.

STANLEY'S DISCOVERIES.

Stanley has been away from civilization for a long time. There is a general belief that he has made valuable discoveries, but very few have any definite idea as to what these discoveries are. The following extract from a recent letter of the explorer's furnishes an outline of what he has accomplished in the line of geographical discovery:

Over and above the happy ending of our appointed duties, we have not been unfortunate in geographical discoveries. The Aruwimi is now known from its source to its bourne in the great Congo forest, covering as large an area as France and the Iberian Peninsulas. We can now certify to be an absolute fact that the Mountains of the Moon this time, beyond the least doubt, have been located. Ruwensori, the Cloud King, robed in eternal snow, has been seen, and its flanks explored and some of its shoulders ascended. Mts. Gordon Bennett and MacKinnon cones being but giant sentries warding off approach to the inner area of the Cloud King. On the southeast of the range a connection between the Albert Edward Nyanza and the Albert Nyanza has been discovered, and the extent of the former lake is now known for the first time. Range after range of mountains has been traversed, separated by such tracts of pasture land as would make your cowboys out West mad with envy. And right under the burning equator we have fed on blackberries and other berries, and quenched our thirst with crystal water fresh from the snowbeds. We have also been able to add nearly 6000 square miles of water to the Victoria Nyanza. Our naturalist will expatiate upon the new species of animals, birds and plants he discovered; our surgeon will tell what he knows of the climate and its amenities; but it will take us all we know how to say what new store of knowledge has been gathered from this unexpected field of discoveries.

OUR PRODUCTIVE SOIL.

Secretary Rusk, in his first annual report, gives some interesting facts. For instance, we find that the increase of cows between 1850 and 1880 was more than 6,000,000. The annual butter product is estimated at 1,300,000,000 pounds, and that of cheese at 400,000,000 pounds. The Secretary says:

Dairying, when properly conducted, is unquestionably a most profitable branch of farming. The fact also that it supplies our people with one of the most complete and healthful of all foods gives it another claim to our consideration. Such products as butter and cheese are admirably adapted for transportation to distant markets, permitting as they do a remarkable concentration of bulk in proportion to value, and taking nothing from the fertility of the soil utilized in their production.

From the same source it is learned that the value of the poultry product last year was not less than $200,000,000. During the same period 16,000,000 eggs were imported, at a cost of $2,500,000. We have frequently commented on the folly of importing eggs, when we have so many able United States chickens at home; but if the importation does not amount to more than 12 per cent. of the home production, it is, while apparently unnecessary, not so very dangerous after all.

According to Secretary Rusk, the modest but useful baa-lamb is coming rapidly to the front in the United States. The increase in the consumption of mutton is shown to have been twice as rapid as the increase of population. For the wool industry the Secretary makes the following strong appeal:

The wool industry probably represents $300,000,000 per annum, and the native wool product is four times as large as in 1860, while the average fleece weighs as much as two of that date. Prior to that time there was a slow increase of numbers and small advances in quality or weight. I respectfully call your attention to a fact full of significance in this connection. There has recently been serious interruption to the prosperity of wool-growers. Since the reduction of the tariff of 1883 the numbers of sheep have apparently been reduced about seven million, and the importation of wool has increased from 78,350,051 pounds in 1884, to 126,487,729 the past year. Upon the sheep and wool industry of this country the burden of that loss has fallen, while our manufacturers have contributed so much additional money to foreign markets.

It may be that, as is sometimes stated, Mr. Rusk is laying his wires with a view to future Presidential possibilities; but in any case he is making a good head of the new Agricultural Department—a department which should, in this country, be at least as important as those of War and the Navy.

FROM time to time a voice comes from Canada demanding a change in the existing form of government. These expressions may not amount to much in themselves, but taken altogether they are significant. Here is a recent utterance from La Patrie of Montreal, the leading Liberal organ of Canada, published in the French language:

There remains in the New World only Canada under a royal scepter. Our most lively desire is that it may be given to him who writes these lines, and to all who read them, to see the day dawn when, flying over the electric wires, there will resound through the entire world the great news of the completion of the work of Washington, Lafayette, Franklin, Louis XVI., Rochambeau, Canning, Bolivar, Sucre, Lincoln, Paez, our fathers of 1837, of Fonseca, the final end of the domination of Europe over America, the complete emancipation of the New World, the reign of liberty from one pole to the other, the proclamation of the Canadian Republic.

THE case of the San Bernardino Board of Trade against the Santa Fé road, for alleged discrimination in favor of Los Angeles as against San Bernardino, was before the Interstate Commerce Commission on Thursday last.

ART.

Progress in America—The Barbizon School—Foreign Notes.

American taste in the realm of art is beginning at length to obtain foreign recognition. In days that are gone it has been charged that we were not really an artistic people, and that we were largely dependent upon foreign ideas in determining our judgment. The country a few years ago was flooded by bogus "old masters" and crude productions of foreign painters. But at length we are beginning to be recognized as art connoisseurs, through the courageous boldness with which many Americans have purchased the works of the Barbizon painters, which European purchasers approached so timidly. Of these works a recent writer says:

"The works of these modern masters have risen in public estimation and value until we see the remarkable sight of a picture selling for more than $100,000, 20 years after the painter considered himself lucky to get $500 for it. Indeed, it has been mainly in America that the pictures of the Romanic school have been bought, and it is a pleasing thing to see the Old World gradually following the pace set by the new. In this country it has been maintained that in the Barbizon school were to be found landscape painters destined in time to be known as the greatest masters of the art that have ever lived. . . . The first intimation that reaches us showing that European critics and connoisseurs are gradually coming to the same conclusion is to be found in the New Review for September, wherein an article by Claude Phillips on the exhibition of a century of French art, now holding in Paris, we read that:

"'After all, when the artistic glories of France during the nineteenth century are summed up, its greatest will be to have produced what is, perhaps, on the whole, the finest, and certainly the most moving, school of landscape that the world has yet seen. I refer, of course, to the so-called Barbizon school—that noble body of masters painting in and round the forest of Fontainebleau, and in Northern France generally—which may be taken to include Jules Dupré, Theodore Rousseau, Jean François Millet, Diaz de la Pena, Troyon and Daubigny, and in which may also be reckoned, if affinity of style is to guide us, such still living painters as MM. Harpignies and Pointelin. It may appear excessive and audacious praise to place this unique group of landscapists on a higher level than the great Dutchmen of the seventeenth century—above such masters as Van Goyen, the Ruysdaels, Hobbema, Cuyp, De Koninck and Adrian Van de Velde. I am not unmindful of the magic achievements of the former, or of the consummate style which enabled them often to ennoble the outwardly commonplace materials which they had at hand. But they did not embrace Nature so closely or interpret her with such tenderness as did their French successors, who, enriched with all the added resources of modern art, were not less consummate masters of technique than their predecessors."

Art Notes.

Hogarth's "Tastes in High Life," which changed owners at Christie's recently for £225, was sold in 1746 with the pictures of Miss Edwardes, a wealthy and eccentric lady, to a Mr. Birch for five guineas.

Holman Hunt has made great progress with his new picture, though its advance is necessarily slow, owing to the great number of portraits of Fellows and others it includes. The work is to be called "May Morning on Magdalen Tower."

Ezekiel, of Rome, has finished a recumbent statue of Mrs. White, wife of the former minister at Berlin, for the chapel at Cornell University. The figure is clad in long, flowing robes, and holds a rose in her hands, which are clasped over her bosom.

The Doré gallery in New Bond street, London, is said to make $50,000 a year. Orders for publications of Doré's pictures are claimed to have reached the sum of $350,780 during the last five years, while the present stock of engravings is estimated at $925,000.

M. Cain, the sculptor, has refused a medal awarded him at the Paris Exposition, because, as he claims, one of the jurors who conferred the honor was some time ago fined for counterfeiting his (Cain's) works. There are some compliments of which artists do not approve.

At a sale in London an early work of Mlle. Rosa Bonheur, painted in 1847, and formerly belonging to the famous engineer, Brunel, was bought at 2500 guineas, the last bid being from Messrs. Agnew at 2400 guineas. The picture measures 70 inches by 50 inches, and is a landscape with six red Breton oxen.

LOCAL EVENTS.

THE USEFUL POLICE AND WHAT THEY HAVE DONE.

Summary of Eleven Months' Work—The Nationalists Listen to a Discourse—Single Tax Club Formed—A Bad Man Jailed.

Secretary Curran of the police department has completed his report of the operations of the force for the past 11 months, which will be presented to the Council this morning. It is one of the most complete and comprehensive documents ever prepared by an officer in the department, showing the work in detail, and containing a large amount of information that will be news to the general public.

The report shows that the police force consists of 90 men, exclusive of the Chief and matron, and the total number of arrests from January 1st to November 30th, inclusive, was 3407, the highest number in any one month being 585, in February, and the lowest, 188, in July. Of the 3407 persons arrested, 2971 were convicted, 384 were dismissed, and 52 were bound over to appear before the Superior Court.

The detective branch of the department also shows up well, 590 of the arrests having been made by that arm of the service. Besides, stolen property to the amount of $6397.75 was recovered, as follows: January, $784.50; February, $846; March, $327.75; April, $542; May, $478; June, $237; July, 149; August, $736; September, $896; October, $1161; November, $240.

The total amount of delinquent licenses collected by the department was $1773.65, as follows: January, $197.15; February, $302.50; March, $234.50; April, $355.50; May, $294; June, $251.50; July, $77.50; August, $32; September, 325; October, $4. The striking decrease in the collections during the latter months is explained by the fact that when the new Police Commission came into office under the new charter saloons were compelled to pay up their licenses promptly on the first of each month, the penalty for failure to do so being the forfeiture of license. Besides this an additional license inspector was appointed last July, which had the effect of relieving the department from a greater portion of this work.

During the year $15,028.95 was deposited at the police station as bail money, and $1654.65 was paid in as fines after commitments had been issued.

The total number of days' work done by the chain gang amounted to 3261 days, equivalent, at $1 a day, to $3261. The total number of meals furnished prisoners in the City Prison was 23,567, at a cost of $2945.87, from which it will be seen that the work of the chain gang paid a profit to the city, even after feeding all the prisoners.

The amount of miscellaneous work performed by the force was very great, among other things 481 warrants and 1586 subpœnas being served, besides which 935 jurors were summoned. In addition to this, 234 lost horses and 18 head of stock were [illegible] up and returned to their owners, and 104 lost children were found and restored to their parents.

The patrol wagon [illegible] cost, and a good [illegible] sons having been [illegible] to do which [illegible]

At the station [illegible] 296 lodgers were accommodated, and [illegible] 258 persons were treated for medical treatment. Twenty-one insane people were temporarily cared for, and 24 sick were sent home, an exhibit that shows that the Police Surgeon has earned his salary, and emphasizes the great necessity for a receiving hospital.

The following comparative statement, embodied in the report, which explains itself, will be found of interest, as showing how the Los Angeles department compares with that of other cities:

Cities.	Population.	Area in acres.	No. Policemen.	No. acres to each officer.	No. inhabitants to each officer
New York	1,750,000	26,560	3278	8.10	533.86
Philadelphia	1,101,000	80,000	1664	48.07	606 97
Chicago	800,000	23,680	1145	20.68	698.62
Brooklyn	757,000	16,967	968	18 26	815 74
St. Louis	446,000	40,000	625	72.07	762.80
Boston	425,000	23,680	795	29.97	537.98
Baltimore	400 000	19,250	725	13.16	567.38
San Francisco	350,000	28,730	465	65.97	864.80
Cincinnati	325 000	15,360	414	37.10	785.03
Los Angeles	80,000	18,000	90	200.62	888.88

In this connection it may be well to state that the discipline of the force was never better than at the present time, nor the city in better condition from a police standpoint.

THE NATIONALISTS.

A Speaker Not the Dude That He Looked.

The Nationalists' meeting in Temperance Temple yesterday afternoon, at 2:30, was largely attended and considerable enthusiasm was developed by the audience.

The meeting was opened with music and the orator of the day, H. G. Wilshire, of Fullerton, was introduced. He is a very young man, wears his hair banged, sports a white necktie and plays affectionately with a shadow of a mustache. But he is not the dude he looks, for, before he had been on the platform five minutes, he convinced his audience that he knows something about Nationalism, and a few other things. He took for his subject "Nationalism a Military Necessity," but, like many young speakers, Mr. Wilshire kept as far from his subject as possible. He demanded that the Government take charge of the railroads as soon as possible, so that, in case of war, troops may be moved across the country without delay. He is not in favor of throwing monopolists into prison, but he thinks that if Mr. Spreckels is imprisoned for getting up a sugar trust, Maj. Jones, and, in fact, the whole Board of Trade should be sent to Darcy's Castle for getting up a producers' union. He is in favor of turning all monopolies over to the Government. If, in case of war, the Government sends provisions, etc., to its troops at cost, the people should be supplied in the same way, and this can be done only when the Government owns and operates the railroads. He does not care to destroy trusts; he simply wants to absorb and control them. "We are not against capital," said the speaker, "but we want to see it controlled by the Government. Farmers now find it almost impossible to make a living from their crops. They are being pushed to the wall by monopolists and trusts, and I am confident that the time will soon come when the farmers' hardships will reach the cities, and the effects will bring on red riots. The people must be fed, but we cannot expect the farmers to feed them much longer for nothing. Nationalism is growing rapidly, but not altogether through the efforts of speakers and clubs. Like all great reforms, the time is ripe, and there is nothing under the sun that will hold it back."

Mrs. Elizabeth Hughes, who was to read a paper on "Coöperation," did not put in an appearance, for the reason that she had not prepared her paper, and the rest of the meeting was taken up by singing and debates.

SKIPPED OUT.

Shepherd Joins the Crowd at Seattle—His Sudden Departure.

Another man has shaken the dust of Los Angeles from his feet, and skipped for pastures new, leaving a number of sorrowing creditors to mourn his sudden departure. Most people will remember a little black-eyed, black-haired individual, named Shepherd, who figured quite numerously in the political campaigns of the last year or two. Shepherd came to Los Angeles from the north, where he is said to have played several star engagements, having left Fresno rather suddenly, where he forgot to pay a number of bills. When he first came to the city Shepherd was a waiter, and served as such in several of the restaurants. He was, however, a bright, sharp fellow, and when the waiters organized a union he was a shining light in the organization, and began to pose as a representative workingman. He was not long in coming to the front, and in one of the municipal campaigns he managed to get elected as a delegate to the Republican convention. From this time on Shepherd laid aside his white apron and donned the plug hat of the professional "ward worker." He was useful in more ways than one, and in one of the elections evidently made something, for a short time afterward he blossomed out as the proprietor of a small restaurant on Third street. He failed in this enterprise after a short time, when he began "skirmishing." Having been a statesman, he could not again return to menial labor, and hung around, getting odd jobs at anything that came up, so long as it did not require hard work. After the last election, grass got to be very short, but Shepherd was something of a "rustler," and managed to keep his head above water. A short time ago a ball was given at Turnverein Hall by the "Elite Benevolent Society," composed of Shepherd and one other person. The ball was fairly successful from a financial standpoint, and the beneficiaries, Shepherd and his partner, gathered in the shekels and quietly departed, leaving behind between $150 and $200 in unpaid bills, besides other small amounts. At last accounts Shepherd was in Seattle, where, it is presumed, he is following his former occupation as a waiter.

BAD MAN JAILED.

K. W. Wise Locked Up for Abusing His Wife and Children.

Yesterday about noon a man named Wise, who lives near the corner of State and Virginia streets, near Angeleño Heights, was arrested and brought to the station, where he was locked up on a charge of disturbing the peace. The telephone message calling for an officer said that the disturbance was at the corner of State and Virginia, and the patrol wagon was sent to that place on Boyle Heights. Here nothing was known about the matter and the wagon returned, when another message was received giving the same locality, but calling the officers to come out Temple [illegible] one, and the place [illegible] any trouble.

[illegible] took, cursing his wife and applying the lowest epithets to her. Officer Vignes placed him under arrest and started with him for the wagon, when the woman took a hand in the affair on her own hook and joined in abusing the officer. The man was then brought to the station, where he was searched, nothing being found on his person, and he was locked up. Shortly after Mrs. Wise came to the station to put in a plea for her husband's defense, saying that while he had abused her, she did not want him arrested. She also insisted that Wise had some money when he left home. The officers told her that she must be mistaken, as they had searched him, but she was so persistent that Vignes went back into the jail with Officer Lenox, and when asked about the money Wise produced $5.15, he having hid the money in his shoe before he was searched. As Wise has made a great nuisance of himself, he will probably get a severe sentence.

SINGLE TAX CLUB.

The Disciples of Henry George Organized.

Yesterday a society was organized in this city by the name of the Los Angeles Single Tax Club. The object of the society is expressed in the following extract from its constitution:

We advocate the abolition of all taxes upon industry and the products of industry, and the taking by taxation upon land values irrespective of improvements of the annual rental value of all those various forms of natural opportunities embraced under the general term, land.

We hold that to tax labor or its products is to discourage industry.

We hold that to tax land values to their full amount will render it impossible for any man to exact from others a price for the privilege of using those bounties of Nature in which all living men have an equal right of use; that it will compel every individual controlling natural opportunities to either utilize them by the employment of labor or abandon them to others; that it will thus provide opportunities of work for all men, and secure to each the full reward of his labor; and that as a result involuntary poverty will be abolished and the greed, intemperance and vice that spring from poverty and the dread of poverty will be swept away.

This is the theory advanced by Henry George.

A Cow's Signal.

The Tulare Register of Friday says: Yesterday morning, December 5th, as Train 19 was pulling through the fog, near Minturn, Engineer Meyers saw a cow ahead, with her legs down through the trestle-work of the bridge. The animal was pointed the other way, but she moved her tail as a stop signal. It was too late, however, and the cow-catcher caught her at the rate of 60 miles an hour and cut her from tail to nose, throwing the upper half into the ditch and leaving the lower in the trestle-work.

A Mormon Prediction Not Fulfilled.

[Salt Lake Tribune.]

A dodger printed in 1885 has turned up, which Liberals regret was not introduced at the recent hearing. On this dodger appears a coffin whereon is printed: "Independence Day, died July 4, 1885." When shown Judge Anderson yesterday he is said to have looked surprised, and remarked, "W-h-e-w!" but said nothing further.

It Speaks for Itself.

[Ojai Valley View.]

The Los Angeles Express mourns the decease of the "eminent statesman," Martin Farquhar Tupper. As a poet and philosopher his fame is "proverbial," but his eminence as a statesman is another astonishing discovery.

BRAZIL'S REVOLT.

Additional Details of Dom Pedro's Downfall.

The Emperor's Mistake Was That He Did Not Show Himself.

The Minister of Marine Shot Down at the Head of His Men.

Further Accounts of the Way the New Government Suppressed or Doctored Telegrams—The Prospects.

By Telegraph to The Times.

LISBON, Dec. 8.—[By Cable and Associated Press.] The steamer Atrato has arrived with advices from Rio de Janeiro which confirm the statement that the revolution in Brazil was precipitated by an attempt of the Government to remove the disaffected troops stationed at Rio de Janeiro to the provinces. The revolt was confined to the military and students.

Gen. da Fonseca, head of the provisional Government, in a message sent by him to Dom Pedro on November 16th said: "The democratic sentiment of the Nation, combined with resentment at the systematic repressive measures of the Government against the army and navy, and the spoliation of their rights, have brought about a revolution. In the face of this situation, the presence of the imperial family in the country is impossible. Yielding, therefore, to the exigencies of the national voice, the provisional Government is compelled to request you to leave Brazilian territory with your family within 24 hours. The country expects that you will know how to imitate the example set by the first Emperor of Brazil on April 7, 1831."

Comte d'Eu, in an interview today on the situation in Brazil, said that the Republicans there were few in number, but they profited by the abolition of slavery. The Republicans pretended that the abolition of slavery was entirely due to the throne. Meanwhile the army had become tyrannical and insolent, and the only means of checking it was to revive the Garde Nationale, which had always been a conservative body, the Crown nominating its officers. The Government therefore resolved to create a regiment in Rio de Janeiro, whereupon the Republicans spread the report that the authorities intended to revive the Garde Nationale generally, and to check and disarm the regular army. The military thereupon decided to revolt under the leadership of Gen. Fonseca, who is a weak man and easily managed.

Regarding the prospect of the restoration of the Empire, Comte d'Eu said that Brazil was too far from Europe, and a man was wanted who could bring the army around to the Empire. If the Emperor had appeared on the streets when the rebellion broke out, the crowd would have cheered him. Now it was too late.

The order of expulsion extended to Admiral Prince Augustus of Coburg, commander of a Brazilian ironclad, which is expected to reach European waters shortly via the Suez Canal.

An Englishman, agent of an important English bank at Rio de Janeiro, who was aboard the Atrato, said: "On Sunday the telegraph was seized. No messages were delivered—not even those addressed to the British Consul. I went to the consulate at 10 o'clock in the morning, and was stopped by soldiers. Mr. Nicolini, the Acting British Consul, was stopped also. We feared exchange would fall to nothing, but the provisional Government notified the English bank managers that if they allowed exchange to fall their establishment would be suppressed. Nothing could exceed the feeling of kindness which every one, including the provisional ministers, entertained toward the Emperor, but the cowardice of those who ought to have resisted was contemptible. The wealthier classes were timorous rather than indifferent. [illegible] will be [illegible] Government provided against the publication of anything unfavorable or disquieting. Even telegrams to foreign ministers were quietly suppressed. At Rio the Legislature on the 18th approved the reconstruction of the Constitution on the basis of thorough democracy. The same day was a public holiday throughout Brazil.

A MINISTER SHOT.

The Minister of Marine at the head of a small body of sailors and marines tried to suppress what he believed to be a revolt of infantry at their barracks, but the marines fraternized with the rebels, who summoned the Minister to surrender. This he refused point blank to do and tried to draw his revolver. The soldiers immediately shot him down in the presence of the other general standing at his side.

The disaffected troops anticipated that the Government would move against them, and at the head of two regiments of cavalry and a battery of artillery Da Fonseca surrounded the Santa Ana barracks, where the Ministers had assembled. The troops inside fraternized with those outside. The barrack gates were thrown open and the Ministers witnessed Da Fonseca's triumphant entry and exit, saluted by the troops. With the exception of the foregoing incident, this concluded the business.

DOCTORED DISPATCHES.

Telegrams were printed in Rio papers to try to show that Europe was approving a change of régime. A telegram dated London, November 19th, from Rothschild to the Finance Minister was published in English and Portuguese. It expressed Rothschild's unfeigned satisfaction with the assurance of the Government that it would adhere to all contracts, and also a hope that the Government would strain every nerve to maintain the entire vast domains of Brazil.

The Commercio d'Oporto publishes a dispatch from Rio de Janeiro, dated December 6th, which states that Barbosa, Minister of Finance, has resigned and been replaced by Senhor Saldanha Marinha.

A WHISKY WAR.

Riotous Street Scenes at Des Moines, Iowa.

DES MOINES (Iowa), Dec. 8.—[By the Associated Press.] Several citizens were arrested today and placed under bonds to appear in connection with the street row of Saturday night. Two constables, who have made themselves very unpopular by their searches for liquor, arrested John Ring on a trivial pretext, and on his remonstrating, brutally beat him with clubs. A crowd gathered, and some one suggested lynching the constables. They made their escape into a justice's office, but a crowd gathered, and were preparing to storm the place, when a force of police came and rescued the constables, taking them to headquarters for safe keeping. The arrests made today are of those supposed to have been concerned in the attack, but sentiment is so strong against the constables that it is not likely much can be done.

Murder Will Out.

WHEELING (W.Va.), Dec. 8.—Eight months ago Jacob Morgan, a veteran of the war, was murdered and $1000 of pension money stolen. Yesterday detectives arrested Charles Tabler, a prominent young merchant. Proof has been found that Tabler and Morgan's handsome young wife were criminally intimate, and conspired to put the old man out of the way and live together.

Clearing-house Reports.

BOSTON, Dec. 8.—Dispatches from clearing-houses of the leading cities in the United States and Canada show that the total gross exchanges for the week ended December 7th were $1,323,817,304, an increase of 8.3 per cent. compared with the corresponding week last year.

Los Angeles Wins.

SAN DIEGO, Dec. 8.—The fourth game of base-ball of the series between San Diego and Los Angeles was won by the latter this afternoon by a score of 16 to 5. The visitors had the home team defeated in the first inning, in which they made four runs. This makes two victories each.

A JEALOUS MAN'S CRIMES.

He Kills His Paramour and Commits Suicide.

CORNING, Dec. 8.—[By the Associated Press.] Early this morning a man named Cunhusky shot and killed Mrs. Eliza J. Smith in a house of questionable character. The shot took effect in her forehead, crushing her skull. Cunhusky then blew out his own brains with a revolver.

The couple had been living together, Mrs. Smith having left her husband a few months ago. It appears that Mrs. Smith had announced her intention of going to Orland with another man, and Cunhusky becoming jealous, upbraided the woman, and in a violent passion, committed the deed. Realizing the enormity of his crime, he then took his own life.

Letters were found on Cunhusky from a lawyer in Jacksonville, Or., relating to money matters. Both bodies were taken to Red Bluff for burial.

Fatal Saloon Quarrel.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 8.—John Dobis was stabbed tonight in a saloon on Seventeenth street, and probably mortally wounded, by William Delay. The men were in the saloon drinking, and became involved in a quarrel over a woman, when Delay drew a dagger and plunged it into Dobin's abdomen, inflicting two ugly gashes, which it is thought will prove fatal. Delay was arrested.

A Family Poisoned.

TACOMA (Wash.), Dec. 8.—The family of William Foyle, comprising his brother, three children and a hired girl, were all dangerously poisoned yesterday by eating rough-on-rats, which had been mixed with the flour from which their bread was made. It was five hours before a doctor was able to leave the sick, and some of them are still in danger.

VIEWING THE DEAD.

THRONGS ABOUT JEFF DAVIS'S COFFIN.

Secretary Proctor's Message to the Mayor of New Orleans Declining to Take the Usual Official Action.

By Telegraph to The Times.

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 8.—[By the Associated Press.] Many churches held memorial services in honor of Jefferson Davis today. It is Bishop Galleher's intention to have the funeral services take place in the broad portico of the City Hall. A surpliced choir will sing an anthem there and at the tomb. The body will be taken to the cemetery, about three miles, on a gun caisson. The parade will be of immense proportions. The somber drapery of mourning is spreading over the city. Today the shipping dipped its flags, the British steamships especially putting their flags at half-mast.

More than forty thousand people viewed the remains of Mr. Davis today. Floral offerings continue to pour in, and the coffin now looks as if placed at the base of a bank of flowers. Some of the largest and most handsome designs were sent by ex-Confederate soldiers of the different army corps.

PROCTOR'S REPLY.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—The following telegram was received today:

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 7, 1889.

Honorable Secretary of War, Washington: I have officially to inform you that Hon. Jefferson Davis, at one time Secretary of War of the United States, died in this city yesterday. His funeral takes place here December 11th, at noon.

(Signed) JAMES A. SHAKESPEARE,
Mayor of New Orleans.

In response thereto Secretary Proctor sent the following message:

WAR DEPARTMENT,
WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.

Hon. James A. Shakespeare, Mayor of New Orleans: Your telegram informing me [illegible] Jefferson Davis [illegible] I would not, and hope I do not, add to the great sorrow of the family and many friends. It seems to me the right course and the best one for all. You will, I am sure, understand that its adoption is prompted also by my sincere wish and purpose to act in the spirit of peace and goodwill which should fill the hearts of all our people.

(Signed) REDFIELD PROCTOR,
Secretary of War.

MORE RESOLUTIONS.

NEW YORK, Dec. 8. — Representative southern gentlemen met in a New York hotel today to take action on the death of Jeff Davis. Among those present were Gen. Joseph Wheeler, Gen. Roger A. Pryor, Col. T. G. Stewart and Col. Francis Patrick Calhoun. Resolutions were adopted eulogizing the life of Davis and sympathizing with his family.

The Anaconda Still Burning.

BUTTE (Mont.), Dec. 8.—At 1 o'clock this morning smoke began to make its appearance in the shaft of the Anaconda, up which a draft had been coming since the bulkheads were opened in the St. Lawrence. It soon became evident that the draft had fanned the supposed-extinguished fire into activity. Orders were at once given to close the bulkheads again.

Flouring-mills Burned.

LOCKPORT (N. Y.), Dec. 8.—The flouring-mills of Saxton & Thompson were burned today. The loss is $250,000; insurance, $100,000.

EAST SIDE.

Good Templars' Change of Base—News Notes.

The Good Templars have changed their place of meeting to Campbell's Hall, corner of Truman street and Downey avenue.

The young people of the Congregational Church had a social gathering Friday evening and enjoyed themselves.

Campbell's Hall is engaged for Friday evening by the young people of the Church of Epiphany, where they expect to entertain their friends.

A new debating society has been organized on the East Side, called the Tennyson Debating Club, which meets in the Miller block, on North Daly street, every Saturday evening. At its last meeting the question of woman's rights was handled rough shod by the young men who have never yet learned the full rights of woman, and never will know how they are exercised until practical experience shall have demonstrated what their rights are.

Dr. Cox, pastor of the Asbury M. E. Church, preached to a large and attentive audience yesterday morning from the sixth chapter thirtieth and thirty-first verses of St. Mark. The question of pure religion was thoroughly discussed and ably handled. He gave as a reason of so many failures in business and religion, the dependence of men on their own ability and not trusting and depending on the Lord for His support and sanction.

Two arrests for vagrancy were made Saturday and one for the same offense yesterday.

STAGE TONES.

THEATRICAL DULLNESS TO BE DISPELLED.

The Kiralfys in "Antiope" Coming—Al Hayman's Plans—The New Play by the Lyceum Company—Modjeska as "Lady Macbeth"—Musical Notes.

The past week has been remarkable for an absolute dearth of dramatic entertainments at our local theaters. The Opera-house has been closed, and the Los Angeles Theater has been occupied by an ignorant, silly fellow, a pretended Spiritualist, whose coarseness and vulgarity deserved harsher treatment than they received. It is satisfactory to know that he did not attract the crowd he desired and expected.

***

At the Grand, the attraction for the current week will be Bolossy Kiralfy's ballet spectacle, Antiope, opening on Thursday night for four performances, including a Saturday matinée. The management carefully disclaims any literary merit for its production, and therefore any attempt to describe its "plot" would be superfluous. Its attractivenes depends upon fine scenic accessories, girls in gaudy but not voluminous costumes, catchy music, some good ballet principals and some special gymnastic and other acts. All these things have been provided in order to insure the success of the piece in the larger cities, and they are promised for the performance here. Mlle. Paris, Miss Gilbert and Señorita Carmencita are the principal dancers, and are to represent three schools of dancing. The first named giving the regulation ballet movements with the regulation costume, and the two latter indulging in the more modern style of long skirts, soft, clinging, suggestive of beauties unrevealed. Miss Carmencita is a Spaniard, and her style of dancing seems to have captured eastern audiences. Arnold Kiralfy will give some grotesque specialties. The Pialras provide gymnastics; Alexander Davis, ventriloquism, and the Tissots some living marionettes. Mr. Edward G. Cooke, the guileless advance agent of the company, is responsible for the statement that the ballet is not antique, but is made up entirely of young and handsome women.

***

At the Los Angeles Theater an Uncle Tom's Cabin combination will appear next Monday for the week. It belongs to F. E. Griswold, and is said to be one of the best of its kind. There will be no drama at this theater during the current week, but on Wednesday evening Mary Cary, professional elocutionist, will give some dramatic recitations. The lady lays claim to have spent five years in study under the best teachers, and to have had six years' experience on the public platform, so she should be competent to give an interesting entertainment.

San Francisco Music and Drama publishes an interview with Manager Al Hayman, who has just arrived in that city from New York. Among other interesting things Mr. Hayman is quoted as saying: "Business in New York is good, as a general thing, most of the theaters and combinations being on the winning side of the ledger. Unquestionably the two really great successes of the year are the Kendals and [illegible]. The Kendal was simply grand. In no city where they have appeared has the theater been large enough to accommodate the crowds that wanted to get in. In Philadelphia the same success was repeated. As artists they have carried everything before them. Shenandoah has proved a marvel. It is still running at the Twenty-third-street Theater, New York, and is liable to run clear up to the summer months. It has shown the greatest receipts known in the history of McVicker's Theater, in Chicago. Four weeks will be the limit of its run there, and the company will start on its travels without fail at the close of the Chicago run.

"Yes, I have secured for either one of the theaters every desirable attraction in the country. The list of attractions includes Wilson Barrett and his entire London company, the London Gaiety Company, Sara Bernhardt, the Bostonians, Patti, Otto Hegner, the boy pianist; A. M. Palmer's company, the two great spectacular productions from the Chicago Opera-house, The Crystal Slipper and Bluebeard, Jr.; Shenandoah, of course, and the Kendals; The Pearl of Pekin, the Emma Juch Grand English Opera Company, Herrmann's transatlantic vaudeville entertainment, the Howard Specialty Company, E. H. Sothern in a new play; The Old Homestead, Gilbert & Sullivan's new opera, the Hanlon-Volta spectacular pantomime, one of the greatest attractions now in Europe; The Still Alarm, Willard in The Middleman, and in fact all the standard attractions and novelties. So you can readily see that San Francisco is well taken care of as regards her amusements."

***

The new production of the Lyceum Company, The Charity Ball, by Belasco and De Mille, has been favorably received in New York. It is based on an idea which the authors acknowledge is taken from "David Copperfield." The well-known members of the company seem to have distinguished themselves, and especial praise is awarded to Nelson Wheatcroft for a characterization marked by dramatic force and truth to nature. The handsome Kelcey plays the part of an Episcopal clergyman, and Georgia Cayvan draws sympathetic tears from the audience with her usual success. Grace Henderson is the only one of the company who fails to please the critics, and her method is described as dreadfully artificial, and her attempts at pathos as setting the nerves of the audience on edge. In due course, no doubt, the company will visit Los Angeles, where they have always been well received, and our play-goers will have an opportunity of judging the merits of the new piece for themselves.

***

Booth and Modjeska are still playing in New York, though not to very large houses. The story that was circulated by the New York Herald as to a misunderstanding between the "stars" appears to have had no better foundation than Mr. Booth's dislike to floral offerings across the footlights. He has never allowed this practice in his own company, and it is understood he objected to being obliged to take up some floral tributes intended for Mme. Modjeska. The lady herself is getting much praise for her grace and intelligence. In the difficult sleep-walking scene in Macbeth she is described as showing a power of perfectly graduated histrionic skill that it was not supposed she possessed, and also as surpassing in the character of "Lady Macbeth" all previous efforts of the kind on the New York stage. Her many friends here will be anxious to see her in the character.

***

The leading magazines of the country are beginning to give special attention to dramatic matters. Joe Jefferson's entertaining autobiography is running in the Century; Shakespeare's Merry Wives of Windsor is given the most prominent position and type in Harper's and extra illustrated by Abbey. Dion Boucicault, besides his contributions to the Noth American Review, also appears as a writer for the new high-class monthly, The Arena.

***

The New York Dramatic Mirror for the first time in years appears without a feuilleton on the front page by Nym Crinkle, and the editorial indications point to "a new departure." Nym Crinkle's bright articles will be greatly missed by the readers of the paper.

Notes.

Robert Downing intends to dramatize Sir Walter Scott's "Talisman."

Herbert Kelcey of the Lyceum Company had to shave off that handsome mustache in order to play the part of a minister in the new production of The Charity Ball. The mustache is supposed to have been duly embalmed by the fair. The actor is now suffering from tonsilitis.

Lew Dockstader of minstrel fame is making his first appearance in white face. He has had to sacrifice his mustache also, and now his friends cannot recognize him.

The Treasury Department has reversed the decision of the Collector of Customs at Boston, who exacted payment of duty on scenery and stage properties brought to this country by Wilson Barrett, for use in his performances. Such articles had previously passed in free as the "tools of trade" of the actor, and it would appear a narrow-minded policy that would regard them in any other light.

Kansas City journalists have been somewhat excited over certain allegations made and, according to the Mirror, not yet satisfactorily disproved, that there is an undue intimacy between the counting-rooms of the newspapers of that city and the theatrical manager's office, by means of which the notices or "criticisms" of performances are made to accord with the manager's ideas. The latter gentleman is quoted as boasting that he controlled the press on account of his advertising patronage. It is a very pretty quarrel as it stands.

MUSIC.

Excellent Concerts and Recitals Last Week—Quavers.

A few scattering concerts and recitals have been all the week past has had to offer, but the quality has been good and the attendance worthy the programmes offered.

On last Monday night the S. M. Club held its usual fortnightly meeting, with Reineke as a nucleus. The biographical paper which is the unvarying feature of the opening study of a composer was given by Miss Nell Carter, [illegible] entertaining and well selected. Songs were given by Mrs. Cole, Miss Kimball, Miss F. Wills and and Mr. Maybin. The Chopin-Reineke Concerto in E minor was played by Mr. Oram, and some of the lovely "Wedding Music" was played by Messrs. Hamilton and Ward, on violin and piano.

On Friday night the Illinois Society, which has kept so well together so long, gave a weekly social at which was attempted, and fairly well rendered, a little operetta entitled The Rose of Auvergne under the [illegible] ville.

On Wednesday night of this week Mrs. Stagg, former teacher in the University of Southern California, will give a pupils' recital. The concert will be held in the Fort-street Methodist Church. Mrs. Stagg will be assisted by Miss N. Large.

The social of the Los Angeles Choral Society will be held on the night of the 12th inst., having been postponed from the 4th.

Mrs. J. D. Cole's choral class meets every Tuesday morning at 580 South Olive street at 10.

The opening musicale of St. Hilda's Hall, Glendale, last Thursday evening was well attended. A delightful programme was most creditably rendered by members of the faculty and pupils.

Miss Cobb in her piano playing displayed the remarkable technique, brilliancy and artistic finish for which she is noted.

Miss Nellie Boynton followed with a song. She sings with delicacy of expression, a clear enunciation, and her voice has a remarkable carrying quality.

Mr. Henry Ludlam closed the performance with the "Chariot Race" from "Ben Hur."

Outside Notes.

The opening of the German opera season at the Metropolitan Opera-house in New York was the event par excellence of last week, there having been nothing absolutely new presented at any of the other New York theaters.

D'Albert is unfortunately a Frenchman, otherwise he would receive from the German critics the greatest praise. As it is, they admit that he is a wonderful artist, and give him all the credit a French name is entitled to; but the fact still presents itself that he is one of the greatest pianists the world has known.

In introducing Sarasate and D'Albert to the American public, Henry Abbey's absolute expenses per night are close upon $1500, as it is necessary to carry a large orchestra with the two great artists.

It is said that the recent crusade against the organ-grinders and street bands in New York is a failure, and the noisy musicians will eventually win the fight and resume their torture. An expressed desire to carry the prohibition to the silencing of the discordant church bells is said to have prompted the clergy to influence the Board of Aldermen to rescind the order. After all, it does make a difference whose ox is gored.

A QUEER AFFAIR.

Born on the Porch of a Mission-road House.

There is just now a good deal of quiet talk among the people of East Los Angeles about a remarkable incident that occurred in that section of the city, shortly after 12 o'clock Saturday morning. At the hour named a lady who lives on the Mission road, near the County Hospital, was awakened by a hurried knocking at her front door. Her husband was not at home at the time, and she was afraid to open the door, but wishing to see who it was, she got up and went into another room, from the window of which she could get a view of the porch.

She had hardly got to the window when she saw a man, apparently about 35 years of age and neatly dressed, bringing a young girl up the steps. He laid her down on the floor of the porch. The girl looked as though she could not have been more than 17 or 18 years old, and appeared to be in great pain. The lady heard two or three groans, and before she could realize the situation, the girl gave birth to a child. The man snatched off his coat and wrapped the infant up, and commenced talking to the girl in an excited manner, but in a tone too low to be heard. The lady who had witnessed the strange scene was so shocked that it was several minutes before she could realize what had happened; but as soon as she could collect herself, she went to dress, intending to permit the parties to come in, as she could not allow the poor creature to suffer in the condition she was in, no matter who she might be. She hurried as much as possible, but when she returned to the front door, the man was just putting the girl in the buggy, and, jumping in after her, he drove hurriedly up the road toward Pasadena.

The lady at whose house the affair happened is well known in the city, and is of the highest respectability, so that, improbable as the story looks, there is no room to doubt its truthfulness. She could not recognize either of the persons, nor did she pay enough attention to the horse and buggy to identify it. As near as she can remember, the vehicle seemed to have come from the direction of the city, as the man did not have to turn when he drove off. It is more than probable that the matter will be further looked into, with a view to finding out just who the parties are, and the causes leading to such an important event, so far as they are concerned, under such peculiar circumstances.

London Figaro says that Edward Lloyd, the tenor, will leave England next March for a professional tour in the United States which will last until July.

FRESH LITERATURE.

PICTURESQUE CALIFORNIA and the Region West of the Rocky Mountains from Alaska to Mexico. JOHN MUIR, Editor. (New York and San Francisco: J. Dewing Publishing Company.)

It is a difficult task which the projectors of this great work have undertaken—that of clearly portraying the marvelous scenery and the sublime natural wonders of this coast. But the pens of the best writers, thoroughly familiar with the scenes of which they treat, and the pencils of the most skilled artists, have been brought to the task, and by these means Nature is vividly photographed and her charms most strikingly delineated upon the pages before us.

The illustrations consist of the finest photogravеurs, etchings and woodcuts, all of which hold the soul of the artist's conception, and convey to the reader a clear and correct idea of the marvels of this wonderland of the continent. A perusal of the pages of this sumptuous work impresses the reader almost as powerfully as would an actual journey through the regions described. In vivid word-pictures and in the delightful delineations of art are presented the lofty mountains; the smiling and placid valleys; the wooded cañons; the leaping waterfalls; the rushing cataracts; the orange groves and orchards; the frowning precipices; the geysers and grottoed caverns, and numberless other phases of Nature, together with the stupendous feats of engineering which have been accomplished here.

Then there are petrified forests and wild hunting scenes amidst the haunts of the grizzly. There are beautiful valleys where the fisherman lingers by placid lake or running brook; dreamy isles, sunlighted and fair; curving shores and frowning cliffs; the grandeur of Yosemite and the frowning majesty of Sierra heights; vast empires of grain fields; snow-capped peaks lifted above the eternal summer of the plains; growing cities and unrivalled health-resorts, and other features too numerous for rehearsal, all set before the reader so vividly that he feels like an actual wanderer in this unique land, and his soul is thrilled by that sympathy with which Nature's self stirs her lovers. Such a standard publication needs no elaborate introduction. The entire number will contain over 600 art illustrations, including 120 or more full-page photogravеurs and photo-etchings. The work is to be published in 30 parts, 12x16 inches in size.

To the first numbers of this superb work THE TIMES called the attention of its readers some time since. In this present review we would glance at numbers VII., VIII. and IX., the first of which introduces us to the beautiful regions about the bay, giving us extended glimpses of Oakland and the lesser towns which circle it like beautiful gems set around with crystal and with emeralds. Here we view the University of California, Berkeley from the hills. Mill's College, Oakland, and Lake Meritt in full-page photogravеurs and etching. The text is also charmingly illuminated with lovely views of Oakland, of wide vineyards and broad landscapes with creek and hillside. Here are also descriptions and pictures of the game regions of the Upper Sacramento—wooded camps with dogs, deer, quail and hunters filling the foreground. Of this section take this perfect word picture:

Go with me to this heart of the world's heart for an hour, for who should know the haunts and habits of all things so entirely? In the first place few equipments are needed. . . . But there is one sort of outfit you must surely have before starting, and that is a kind of mental equipment. You must catch the colors. Do this and you will come away content. Your catch of trout, your death shot at the black, brown or grizzly bear—all this will to the end of life be mere detail in comparison with results. This intensity and emphasis of color is due to the sapphire and the purple of the skies and the mighty mountain of snow. The vast and high-held world of whiteness above you, only a little below the sapphire of heaven, as it seems when you look up through the black immensity of trees overheat; this Mount—Shasta heaven and earth coming so close together—these two things make a new, or at least a magnified and an intensified world of color. And this element enters into all things there, even down to the fiery red blossom that bursts through the snow at your feet. I implore you go prepared to see and comprehend, so far as possible, the indescribable calm of this colossal Shasta world. The soul grows there.

"The Heart of Southern California" is from the able and graphic pen of Mrs. Jeanne C. Carr, and into the very heart of the grandeur, the beauty and charm of this section does she take the reader. Her sketch comprises about half of Part VIII. and the whole of Part IX. The beautiful and numerous illustrations add emphasis and breadth to the text, supplementing as they do the finished pen-pictures of the author. Take this delightful picture which she gives us of the vanished past—the picture of the Los Angeles of our dreams, when the dark-eyed señoritas walked with their dusky lovers through the quiet moonlighted streets of the Angel City:

No book has been written, no song has been sung which adequately represents the simple delight of living in old Los Angeles; the one city under our flag where one might bask in the sunshine for days and weeks unreproved by his own conscience or the example of his fellow-men. The winter visitor who carried no time-table, to whom no ride was long enough, through pastures where myriads of wild geese were feeding, there found himself welcomed to some low-ceiled chamber of peace opening upon a garden. If the mockingbird roused him from slumber, there was no rumble of trains, no cry of newsboy or milkman, to break the spell of that perfect hospitality. If waking late and refreshed, he looked through the trellised vines (where ruby-throated hummingbirds bathed in the spray of the fountain), perchance he saw the hostess preparing his breakfast of coffee and tamillas, or the more appetizing "tomales." There was no hurry, no bustle—Angelenos might labor; they never toiled.

There was much informal visiting, and whatever the number of guests, none lacked a cordial welcome. After the early dinner came the siesta. There was never a word about poor crops or bad investments; the sun was the bank, and had never failed. The family circle gathered on the wide veranda, where the guest was entertained with stories of pioneer experience, or took part in the dance to the music of the ever-present guitar. The moon was their familiar friend, and they made the most of her company.

Outside of the single business street and straggling lanes of the old pueblo, one might easily lose himself for days or weeks in a wilderness of vineyards and groves of walnut and orange trees. The waters of the Los Angeles River were conveyed through every plantation by zanjas, or distributing canals; flowing with a speed of five miles an hour, these streams were an important element among the homestead charms. The leafless walnut trees, with their silvery trunks and intricate network of branches, relieved the monotony of the orange groves; and frequent patches of blooming almond trees were a foretaste of celestial gardens.

But our space forbids further quotations. Every critical and intelligent American who feels a laudable pride in his country will delight in the sumptuous completeness with which this magnificent section of it is being presented to the world in the pages of "Picturesque California."

Magazines.

Lippincott's Magazine for December contains the complete novel "Brueton's Bayou," from the pen of John Habberton, author of "Helen's Babies." It is a remarkable and strikingly original story, dealing with the life of an ex-convict, who while serving his term in prison becomes converted to Christianity. "All He Knew" will be read by both believers and non-believers with the keenest interest.

St. Nicholas for December contains an article on "The Boyhood of Thackeray," by his daughter; "Little Alvilda," a Norse fairy tale, by Hjalmar Hjorth Boyesen; "Buffalo Hunting," by Theodore Roosevelt, illustrated by Remington; an article on foot-ball, by Walter Camp, with portraits of the Yale, Harvard and Princeton teams; Christmas stories, poems, etc. The article on foot-ball is one of half a dozen articles on this subject, by Walter Camp and other well-known players; and a series of interesting papers relating to various athletic sports will be a prominent feature during the coming year. (The Century Company, New York.)

The Century for December is a magnificent number. Joseph Jefferson's autobiography is full of brilliancy and wit that delights the reader. Here is an example of his quaint way of telling things:

I have often thought that Mr. Burton must have had Irish blood in him, for he was continually spreading the tail of his coat for a fight—I mean an intellectual fight, as physically he was not pugnacious.

His "autobiography" will, if we mistake not, prove as delightful to his readers as is the man himself. (The Century Company, New York.)

The Arena for December has a most attractive table of contents, in which are discussed some of the most interesting and popular questions of the day. Rev. Minot J. Savage treats in the opening article of "The Agencies That Are Working a Revolution in Theology;" Rabbi Solomon Schindler talks of "History in the Public Schools;" N. P. Gilman writes of "Poverty and Crime in Our Great Cities," while that interesting question, "Is Poverty Increasing?" is sought to be answered by O. B. Frothingham. The remaining articles are not less able, and are equally of popular interest. (Boston: The Arena Publishing Company.)

Books Received.

A WINNING WAYWARD WOMAN. By FLORA ADAMS DARLING, author of "Mrs. Darling's Letters; or, Memories of the War;" "A Social Diplomat," etc. (New York: The Judge Publishing Company.)

A FRIEND'S ADVICE.

How a Casual Conversation Resulted in Saving the Life of a Thoughtless Young Man.

Two friends were seated at a lunch table and consulting the bill of fare. One looked fresh and bright; the other pale and languid. After studying the bill all over, the last named person said:

"It's no use. I have no appetite. I cannot eat."

His friend looked anxious.

"What is the matter?" he inquired.

"I don't know. I have a cough in the morning, a tickling in the throat, difficulty in breathing, my pulse is quick, my breath short and I have a tightness across my chest. In the evening I feel chilly; during the day feverish. I don't know what it means."

"My dear fellow, you have the symptoms of consumption. I know because I was in the same terrible path once myself. You must do something at once."

"What can I do?" was the anxious inquiry.

"Be careful; exercise and drink pure whiskey several times a day."

"But I have never been in the habit of drinking whiskey."

"So much the better. Then it will cure you. I used Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey for more than a year and still take it regularly. I am a temperance man, as you know, but I am not so bigoted as to allow my health to suffer when I know what will restore and preserve it."

The above is not an imaginary conversation, but actually took place, substantially as narrated. It is a statement of the experience of thousands of other people throughout America. Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey will check consumption, will prevent pneumonia, will build up tissue, harden the muscles and give life and color. It is nourishing. It is pure. It can be procured in any part of the land, but care should be exercised to secure only the genuine.

EDITORIALS.

UMBRELLAS are at a premium.

WE have Ararats but no arks.

IF one yearns for snow-balls, tobogganing or similar sports, he has but to say the word.

DESPITE the lowering clouds, the churches were all well patronized yesterday. Pasadena is a city of churches.

THE tourist can see an avalanche when it clears by watching the snow on the slopes of San Antonio, and this with the odor of the orange in the air.

WE dislike to draw invidious comparisons, but circumstances compel us to confess that the Weather Bureau was conducted far better under Cleveland than under Harrison. May we not, without party disloyalty, express the hope that the Republican Administration, in its pluvial department at least, will "go dry"?

THE San Francisco Chamber of Commerce, the most important organization of the kind on the coast, expressed a disinclination to coöperate with the delegates of other State boards in the formation of a Pacific Coast Chamber of Commerce. As the object of this new board was to adjust existing difficulties and do away with sectional feelings, it seems somewhat singular that San Francisco should hold off.

THE two or three rich coal men, who, it is believed, are backing or standing behind the Cross road, do not look backward, and the move is made on their part after a careful investigation of the country to be tapped by the road. As we suggested some time ago, the whistle of the locomotive may yet salute Commodore Sweitzer as he rises. This will open up a country near Pasadena which for beauty of mountain scenery cannot be surpassed in this region.

THE skating season has commenced in Southern California, so they say. Mirror Lake, in the Sierra Madres, is frozen over, but the best skating is at Bear Lake. Here the snow lies four feet deep all winter, and the climate is well adapted to those who find our pleasant winter days "monotonous." Bear Lake is reached by a day's climb over the mountains from Redlands. The lake is little known, but is seven miles long and one of the most attractive sheets of water in Southern California. A party left Pasadena to-examine it last week.

AT THE CHURCHES.

Services Yesterday.

There was a large turnout of churchgoers in Pasadena yesterday morning. Owing to the threatening weather the attendance at the evening services was not so large.

At the Tabernacle Rev. Dr. Bresee preached to a large congregation from Luke xii.. 35. His theme was: "Other Worldliness and This Worldliness in Religion."

Rev. D. D. Hill preached in the evening in the First Congregational Church on the subject, "A Fast Young Man." His text was from Second Kings ix., 20: "The driving is like the driving of Jehu, the son of Nimshi, for he driveth furiously."

"Bringing in the Tithes" was the subject of the forcible sermon preached yesterday morning in the First Presbyterian Church by the pastor, Rev. William Ormiston, D.D. The text was from Matthew iii., 10.

Rev. Urmiston closed with an earnest, urgent appeal to the congregation to make a liberal offering to enable the trustees to meet certain impending obligations.

The neat edifice of the North Pasadena Congregational Church was filled yesterday morning. The pastor, Rev. H. T. Staats, spoke on "The Present Comforting and Promising Condition of the Christian Church, as Contrasted with Former Days." The text was from Isaiah xl., 1. The singing was led by Dr. and Mrs. Greer. The anthems and a solo rendered by Miss Emily Bradley were exceptionally well given.

In the absence of the pastor, Rev. E. L. Conger, Rev. Mr. Bowen of Fresno occupied the pulpit of the Universalist Church yesterday.

DR. STEVENS SILENT.

He Cut Skin from a Boy's Arm, but Stands Ready to Show Why.

Dr. Stevens of this place, who was arrested Saturday in Los Angeles by Humane Officer Wright on the charge of cruelty to children, sworn to by S. W. Lanning, who alleges that the defendant took pieces of skin from his son's arm, which he used to graft on to a patient, was seen yesterday afternoon by a TIMES reporter at his home on Colorado street.

Dr. Stevens declined to give his side of the story for publication. He said there are always two sides to a case, and that he would be content to abide by the facts elicited at the hearing today in Los Angeles.

BREVITIES.

Portions of North Fair Oaks avenue are badly washed by the late rain.

There was a large number of churchgoers on the streets yesterday morning.

Among the recent arrivals at the Painter are W. A. Burr, Los Angeles, and Mrs. T. J. Woolner, San Francisco.

The run to Alhambra, mapped out by the Pickwick Club to take place yesterday, was postponed on account of the muddy condition of the roads. It will come off next Sunday.

The ladies of the First Congregational Church will hold the annual fair in the church parlors tomorrow afternoon. In the evening a Russian tea will be served from 5 to 8 o'clock by Mrs. Jewett.

North Pasadena travelers over the City Railway Company's streetcar line have to board the car some distance north of Colorado street, on Raymond avenue. The laying of a new water pipe main causes the trouble.

PASADENA HISTORY.

THE HOPES OF THE COLONISTS—DREAMS OF WEALTH.

Figuring Up the Profits from Ranges—Old Orange Grove Avenue—Dry Years—Struggling of the Pioneers—The Foundation of the City of Today.

NO. II.

When a stranger comes to Pasadena now the real-estate agent shows him Orange Grove avenue, and as much of Pasadena as is thought necessary by the agent in order to make the desired sale. In the pioneer days of Pasadena the newcomer was taken to the orange groves of L. J. Rose, D. B. Wilson and J. de Barth Shorb. The home of Col. Kewen, now the Mayberry ranch, was a favorite spot to see at that time, but it has lost much of its charm. The principal attractions at this place were the quantities of roses and other flowers, the fine grounds and the hospitable reception always given to a stranger by the mistress of "El Molino" (the mill), as the place was called. The old stone house at El Molino was formerly a mill, built by the Spanish fathers, but no one would suspect it after Col. Kewen and his wife transformed it into their pleasant home. The roads which then led to these groves, and also to any other part of the valley, were very numerous at that time.

From the corner of what is now Colorado street and Marengo avenue the roads branched off in every direction. If a stranger inquired the road to either Eaton's Cañon or the San Gabriel Mission, he was directed to take any road and he would eventually reach his destination.

This was a fact, only it was necessary to drive toward the north in order to reach Eaton's Cañon, and in the opposite direction if he wished to drive to San Gabriel Mission. A stranger was shown the old groves then, so that he might see what could be done in Pasadena. A visit to these orange groves at that time was a sufficient incentive for a man to desire to possess an orange grove and to sit under his own vine and fig tree.

The Pasadenian would return home after visiting one of these older groves and figure out his future profits from his prospective work, something after this fashion: Seventy-five seedling orange trees to an acre; from 1000 to 3000 oranges to a tree, when the tree came into full bearing. This yield, at 3 cents per orange, would produce a profit of $2000 to the acre. Even if the oranges sold for $10 per thousand this would be a splendid income, as an orange crop is considered a sure one. This was the dream of every man who bought land in Pasadena at that time. This was to be his reward after six or eight years of hard work. No one but the enthusiast dared hope that the future held forth to him at that early period.

Six-year-old orange trees were bought at the rate of $3 per tree. A large number of the colonists preferred to pay this price for trees rather than to wait for younger trees. However, orange trees of all ages were planted, from two-year-old trees to six-year-olds.

Everybody started orange nurseries in order to raise trees for themselves and to sell to others.

A great acreage of barley was sown for several years after the colony was started, and strangers driving on Orange Grove avenue at that time would have seen grain fields on each side of the street. Orange Grove avenue now, with its miles of cement sidewalk and well-established grade, making it one of the finest avenues in the world, does not look much like the avenue that was originally laid out when the Indiana colony was started.

Knolls and mounds could be seen everywhere. All these had to be leveled. Leveling land required a great deal of labor and time. The ground had to be plowed four or five times, and after each plowing the soil had to be scraped from the knolls to the lower land before it was in condition for an orchard.

Orange Grove avenue was originally laid out with parks along the entire length. These parks were supposed to be placed between every 60-acre tract along the avenue. In some cases the park extended for a distance of 600 feet, or across the entire front of a 60-acre tract.

These parks made the avenue very irregular. In many places there was a chance to drive on either side of the park.

The founders of the Indiana colony intended these parks for a thing of beauty and a joy forever, but the pepper trees which had been planted were never trimmed. They became neglected and stunted.

The parks were continually covered with weeds. They became the home of the squirrels and gophers. These pests would destroy the orange trees in the adjoining orchards, and to lose an orange tree then was to lose a small fortune.

Each man was supposed to tend to the park in front of his property; but it was soon proved that each colonist had all he could attend to on his own ranch, and in many cases more than could be done well. At a meeting of the property-owners, in 1878, it was decided to straighten the avenue, and to allow each man to take the surplus land that would be taken from these parks in front of his ranch.

Generally when improvements are now made on an avenue, in Pasadena, the owners of the land on each side of the street are compelled to give land in order to widen the avenue. When Orange Grove avenue was straightened many of the colonists received quite a strip of land from these parks. In some cases they were able to plant two rows of orange trees on this new land bordering on the avenue. The newly-set trees were very noticeable at first, as the rest of the grove had been growing for years, and the orange trees had become quite large.

On the land formerly owned by Col. J. Banbury, now subdivided by I. N. Hill, the two front rows of orange trees now are very much smaller than the trees in the remaining portion of the grove. This feature is also noticeable on the land formerly owned by H. G. Bennett.

Lime hedges had been set out along the avenue, but many of these were destroyed at this time.

When these unsightly parks along the entire length of Orange Grove avenue were destroyed, and the land was given to the colonists, the improvement that has made Orange Grove avenue what it is today was commenced.

The colonists had come to Pasadena to farm, and they set about to make a living from their ranches.

Honey had been very profitable in Los Angeles county. In 1874 a swarm of bees with the stand was worth $5. Many of the colonists bought bees, and for the first year or two they succeeded very well with their new business.

In 1875 honey was a drug on the market. The next year the honey interests received a setback in Los Angeles county, from which it took years to recover.

This year, 1876, was a very dry winter; only five inches of rain fell during the entire season.

Nothing grew from which the bees could make honey. Hundreds of swarms of bees died, and most of those that did live soon left for parts unknown, so that many $5-dollar pieces went with them.

This same year, 1876, proved to be the most disastrous of any year since the colony had been started.

The first rain fell about the last of October. From that date until the middle of January no more rain fell. The grass that had started after the first rain died.

A great many men had not taken advantage of the early rain to sow their barley. The grain that was sown in January never amounted to anything. Many of the colonists failed to raise enough hay for their own use.

Any person who was fortunate enough to own any hay or grain in the winter of 1876 sold it for a large profit. Barley sold as high as $2.25 per hundred, and hay sold in the same porportion. The winter of 1876 was very warm. From October until the middle of January not a cloud was to be seen. The colonists had been warned in regard to the dry years in California, and in three years after the colony was started, the much-dreaded dry year had made its appearance.

Very few trees were planted this year, and very few improvements could be made. This dry season made such an impression on the colonists that for the next eight years plenty of prophets were to be found who predicted another dry winter.

The Mexican was always found who gave some sure sign that the approaching winter would be devoid of rain.

Some back district was heard from where the squirrels and gophers were leaving on account of the approaching disaster. The deciduous fruit trees did not lose their leaves until the following spring, at the time they should have started a new growth.

In some cases the trees did not drop their leaves at all. There was no weather cold enough during the entire year to cause them to do so.

The new growth did not start until June, when it should have started in March.

In June, 1877, the people of Pasadena were treated to a week of very hot weather. People did not pretend to do any work. A blast blew from the desert, which felt more like the blast from a furnace than anything else.

The oldest inhabitant of course had never seen anything like it before, but the people who lived in Pasadena at that time have never experienced such a week of hot weather since. The peach and other deciduous trees had not started their new growth at the time, and this hot wind killed a great many of the trees.

The peach crop this year was a complete failure on account of the dry winter.

A great many of the colonists had calculated on a large crop of peaches. A man from the San Gabriel Mission supplied the people of Pasadena with seedling peaches instead.

AT THE RAYMOND.

A Festive Winter Campaign Mapped Out—The Forces Gathering.

The hop Saturday evening proved a delightful event to all present. Some of the music rendered by the orchestra was especially brilliant. Among the dancers were Mr. and Mrs. Maynard, Mrs. Harding, Mr. and Mrs. Park, Miss Shoemaker, Miss English, Miss Ives, P. A. V. Van Doren, Mr. Lindsey, W. S. Gilmore, Miss Marsh, Mr. Shoemaker, Mr. Scharff, Miss Gove and Mr. Merrill.

There is some talk of arranging a January tennis tournament, to take place on the Raymond courts. Pasadena players will be admitted to take part in the contests, and handsome prizes will doubtless be provided for the victors.

The present guests are eagerly awaiting the advent of the second excursion party, and the festivities are now being mapped out for holiday week, and will close with a masquerade ball on New Year's night.

One of the roof ornaments on the front part of the First Presbyterian Church has been almost broken off by the wind and leans at an angle far from the perpendicular. It is a little thing, but it mars the beauty of the edifice and is noticeable to the majority of the passers-by.

A handsome magnolia is in bloom in the yard of the Crown Villa, on North Raymond avenue.

DR. M. HILTON WILLIAMS

Specialist in diseases of the Head, Throat & Chest,

ALSO ALL

Chronic Diseases of the BLOOD, etc.

OFFICE—37 SOUTH FORT ST., Between First and Second streets, Los Angeles, Cal.

OVER 100,000 cases treated during the past 22 years. All diseases of the respiratory organs treated by the most improved MEDICATED INHALATIONS and the OXYGEN TREATMENT, which has such a wonderful reputation in the East.

OXYGEN antagonizes and thoroughly removes every poison in the system from the blood, no matter from what cause it exists or how long it has continued, and is efficacious in the cure of Catarrh, Throat Diseases, Asthma, Bronchitis, Consumption, Nervous Prostration, Insomnia and Dyspepsia, etc., together with any poisoned condition of the blood.

In all cases of catarrh and other diseases of the Respiratory Organs, where the system suffers from the deleterious effects of scrofula or other vitiated condition of the blood, local treatment is invariably conjoined with constitutional remedies.

Persons desiring treatment by this system of practice can use the remedies at home as well as at our office, and which will cause no inconvenience or hindrance to business whatever.

I have seen so many of these cases cured that I do not consider any case hopeless unless the disease has advanced to the chest and both lungs are seriously involved. The inhalations aid us in dissolving the mucus and in connecting and healing the cavities, which nothing else can do with the same success.

The very best references from those already cured.

Those who desire to consult with me in regard to their cases had better call at the office for examination, but if impossible to visit the office personally, can write for list of questions and circular, both of which will be sent free of charge. Address
